Formed in the winter of 2014 from Lisburn city, Northern Ireland; The Crawling use a guttural vocal to combine melancholy with weight, churning out a heavy, doom/death ensemble. January 2015 saw the single 'Choking On Concrete,' followed in October by the highly successful EP 'In Light of Dark Days.' April 2017 the debut album, 'Anatomy Of Loss' was released, receiving excellent reviews worldwide, and was streamed exclusively by Metal Hammer UK. 2018 was the year of, 'Wolves and the Hideous White' featuring six tracks, and again receiving excellent reviews and response from media.

With live music gone, 2021 came around much too quickly, and whilst working on the new album The Crawling released the single; "Sparrow", also featuring a B-side Bjork cover of "Play Dead." 2022/2023 saw the band back on the road headlining dates across the UK, and at home, supporting the single.

Touring was put on hold, the recording process started, and 7 new tracks including a reworking of Sparrow was completed. The new album entitled "All Of This For Nothing" explores the human desire to be accepted, fit in, to be part of perceived normality; despite the reality that nothing matters due to the finite nature of existence. The album also looks at the consequence of said actions, and the accountability culture is assisting in removing.

The Crawling have established their live performance with support from a loyal fan base; most notably appearing at Inferno Metal Festival (Norway), Bloodstock Open Air (UK), Seige of Limerick (IRE), Metal Days (SLO), Shellshockfest (Malta), Uprising (UK), Incinerationfest (UK), Mammothfest (UK) and Full Metal Mensa (GER), recent tours with Winterfylleth & Gaera, an Irish tour with Carcass and numerous UK tours in 2024. 2025 has seen an Eastern European tour in May and a UK run supporting Italian Doom / Death outfit Shores of Null in August 2025. The Crawling are highly active on all social media platforms, and have continued support from Grindscene Records.
